Earned my dollar back within the same week by selling my trading cards. This is the next big thing in gaming. Game crashes A LOT. Unable to play smoothly. There's even an achievement for less than 30 fps... come on... Don't waste your time or money unless you got money to burn :P. The best way to spend one dollar, ever.. Beat all of it and got all the achievements in less than 2 hours. I could very easily just request a refund, and since I have less than 2 hours of playtime, and recently bought it, it would be granted. But I'm not. Why?

Well, for one, I got it for $0.49. And two, it's a great game.

I guess it's time to go farm it for cards.. I bought this game back in 2016 and had no idea what it was, or what to expect.

For the pricetag and the content offered, it is a nice hidden gem. A cute story, a fun premise. Interesting level designs and a storybook style build with so many easter eggs, tricks and mechanic flips to keep this overly minimalistic story-driven shooter of sorts a run for its money. It offers enough grin inducing content that I found myself re-downloading it to try once more for a 3 year old achievement that has yet to be obtained.

For what it is, It wont shamelessly give you a 100% achievement get, and it isnt going to wow you in visual prowess, but this is a cute game. It is a word I rarely use. It is cute, cheap and a decent example of what steam used to provide with indie developers before the shovelware surge.. Short and sweet. Well worth every dollar... Or cent perhaps is better in this case.

It follows the story of you, a Rubber Duck, and a troll developer "helping" you through your journey.

10/10 would press Escape earlier.

If you need more convincing, just check out my gameplay of it. The game is super fun.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rIrrBAaNSsI>. Quirky little game. Quite challenging at first. It was cheap. Sure why not.. Good, funny game). Music is great, duck is great, everything about this game is great. Better than Fortnite and Apex Legends. 100 ducks out of 10 ducks.

the game is short and fun and kinda addicting just wish i could get the secret on the space level oh well. I got this game for .49cents, but it is totally worth the full dollar! Check out my short gameplay here!

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oFW6QqnbHGg>. Worth the 89 cents I paid for it. Quite silly. :)
intros to missions are kinda annoying, but hitting spacebar skips, so whatevs.
very, VERY silly.. This game is utterly bonkers.

I've not even played all the (short) levels yet, let alone fully completed them, but I already have absolutely no reservations about recommending it.

A work of creative magnificance. (Brilliantly fitting sound track too!). Music is great, duck is great, everything about this game is great. Better than Fortnite and Apex Legends. 100 ducks out of 10 ducks.. Once upon a time, there was a duck.

This duck was signature to the others. It was... special.

It could enter codes and gain powers of a god; it could teach people how to spell.

This duck was very special indeed.

That was until one day.

One day, ducky found himself near a rainbow. On the end of it, was a pot of gold. Next to it, a tree. And a rainbow gun. The tree offered him fruit, he accepted the fruit. He was transported to developer land; or equivalent to seed farms. Ducky did not like it, so he played through levels and found secrets.

Soon, he made it. The developer had nothing to say.
So did the players.

I'm speechless at how outstanding this is.. this game is fun
